

Colossians 1:3-8

³We always thank God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, when we pray for you, ⁴because we have heard of your faith in Christ Jesus and the love that you have for all the saints ⁵because of the hope that is stored up for you in heaven. You have already heard about this in the word of truth, the gospel ⁶that is present with you now. The gospel is bearing fruit and growing in the entire world, just as it also has been doing among you from the day you heard it and came to know the grace of God in truth. ⁷You learned this from Epaphras, our dear fellow servant, who is a faithful minister of Christ on your behalf. ⁸He is the one who told us about your love in the Spirit.

God's Grace Is Growing

I.

This is not how Pastor Ham expected to help his people. After all, how could he help if he was in prison?

Pastor Ham was a Hmong village leader in Northern Vietnam. Before he became a Christian, he was a village shaman, someone his neighbors believed could tell the future, and someone people trusted to help with funerals of their loved ones. But Ham knew it was a lie. Even as he would put on the show of a shaman his words were empty and could bring no hope. The gifts of meat and money the poor people from his village would bring for his services became a heavier and heavier weight on his conscience. He wanted to help, but he knew that would mean something had to change. That is what led him to explore a new teaching he heard on a Christian radio broadcast. He traveled to a nearby village to find out more about Jesus. And he believed.

Pastor Ham went back to his village to tell others what he had heard and soon a church began to gather. This scared the officials in power at the time and they threw this new convert in prison. Over the next several years Ham would be interrogated, beaten and isolated in an attempt to get him to renounce his new faith. It must have all been confusing for this new Christian. He had hoped to help his people and he was not about to give up his new confidence, but he was in prison. His people that were gathering as a church were in danger. How could he help if he was stuck, alone and beaten in jail? He did not realize it at the time, but even though he was behind bars, true help had arrived. God was there in his village. Grace had arrived. The Gospel was at work.

The Apostle Paul would be able to relate to Pastor Ham. He spent years in prison because he would not give up his faith in Christ. Paul wrote the letter to the Colossians during a seven-year stint in prison. Enemies in Jerusalem had convinced the local authorities to lock Paul up for trying to undermine the Jewish faith. Local officials looking for bribes from Paul and the good will of people they needed to control kept him locked up for years.

Paul finally appealed as a Roman citizen to the emperor in Rome. It is during his house arrest in Rome that Paul became aware of a problem among a Christian group he had never visited. This new church in Colossae was in danger. False teachers were trying to rob the people of the confidence of salvation through Christ alone. Dangerous ideas about needing to add works to truly earn salvation or to rely only on what human wisdom could comprehend threatened heaven itself for these people. But how could Paul help if he was stuck, alone and beaten in jail?

Paul knew exactly how to help. He sent a letter to the Colossians that would turn their focus back to Christ alone. The words of our text indicate Paul's confidence for the Colossians.

We always thank God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, when we pray for you, ⁴because we have heard of your faith in Christ Jesus and the love that you have for all the saints ⁵because of the hope that is stored up for you in heaven. You have already heard about this in the word of truth, the gospel ⁶that is present with you now. The gospel is bearing fruit and growing in the entire world, just as it also has been doing among you from the day you heard it and came to know the grace of God in truth. ⁷You learned this from Epaphras, our dear fellow servant, who is a faithful minister of Christ on your behalf. ⁸He is the one who told us about your love in the Spirit. (Colossians 1:3-8, EHV).

Paul knew that help did not come from his presence, but from the power of the gospel of Christ. Paul reminds the Colossians to stick to what they already knew. The day the gospel came to them with all the power of God behind it, they had truly understood that they were saved as a free gift from God—no strings attached. They truly understood God's grace. Even though Paul had yet to meet this gathering of believers, he knew the power of God's promises. He knew that the gospel had come to them. Repeated in this letter, that gospel would bear fruit just as it was doing throughout the whole world.

III.

During Pastor Ham's time in prison he did not yet have that same confidence. For years he dedicated his life to help his people who were also under fierce persecution and at times had to retreat for worship under the cover of the jungle. But the help he could provide was limping. He had yet to truly understand God's grace that comes from the clear, simple, and earth-shattering power of the gospel.

Now, that has changed. Through contact with WELS mission workers, Pastor Ham and many other leaders from his Hmong Fellowship Church of Vietnam are being led to truly understand God's grace for the first time.

Pastor Ham describes what has happened:

Personally, since I have been receiving training from the WELS, I see a change in myself, as well. Before this, I taught and used my own authority in the church. At that time, I thought, "I'm the smart one—I'm the one with training, and I am the one with the authority. I can force my members to do the right thing." But since I have been studying with the Lutheran Church, I have changed. I have reevaluated myself and how I taught in the past—and I know that I have taught false teachings. The training made me value my members more—and know that they need the gospel. I used to use the law to motivate my members. That was how I showed my authority. But since receiving this training, I now understand that the law won't help the members. I started to share the gospel and taught them to understand that the gospel will motivate you to love and show care for each other.

Pastor Ham has come to the experts and is asking for help to train his church that now numbers over 100,000 members. He has come to you.

Yes, you. Perhaps that surprises you. You are just what the world needs. The truth about God's Grace is one that you know well. In fact, in comparison to the vast majority of the world you are experts in this truth.

That is not because you are better than anyone else—you know who and what you are; you know what you deserve from God without his help and what you would be able to accomplish apart from God. Even our best days are spoiled by the evil thoughts that go through our heads and the unkind words that slip from our lips and the self-centered outlook that is our default view of the world. When we are honest and realize our hearts are an open book to God, we know what we deserve. God would have been more than right to kick us aside for an eternity in hell. You know it.

But you also know the amazing and unexpected thing God has done. He sent his Son for you. He killed him instead of killing you. He made him suffer so that you can live. These are not truths anyone could expect. Thank God that at some time someone told you: “God forgives you because of what Jesus has done. You will be with Jesus forever in heaven. God will not treat you as your sins deserve.” That grace is how God made you an expert.

IV.

You are an expert in a world that will be lost without this truth. The story of Pastor Ham is just one of billions that could be told. There are over 7 billion people alive on this planet with us today. The experts who have studied this say that more than 6 billion of them do not believe in Jesus. There is no way to sugarcoat this. Those 6 billion unbelievers spread around the globe today are headed to hell. They need what you know.

It might be easy to think: “I know they need what I have, but Vietnam is a long way from here.” Don’t sell God short. He has chosen you and made you to be a citizen of his Kingdom. He has designed you and every member of his Church to spread this news to every nation. Look at the children sitting in church this morning. One could only venture a guess at how many countries in the world just those sitting in this room might visit one day.

Have you seen the thousands of people from other parts of the world who are flocking to our home towns? As the Holy Spirit powers us up with the truth of his forgiveness and grace he gives us opportunities to witness every day. The grandmother who teaches her grandchildren the stories about Jesus and his love gets them ready to be the Savior’s witnesses. The friend who consoles a grieving heart with the truth of God’s unending love leaves a heart that is ready to spread that love to another. Your unexpected act of kindness leaves the recipient curious to find out what makes your heart so willing to love and allows you to explain God’s grace.

These and countless other ways are how God will use your expertise. Once the gospel is truly understood, it springs forth to bear fruit and grow. As our efforts combine with the efforts of Christians around the world, God knits together his perfect plan to make sure more and more hear the message that brings such unexpected help. The gospel of Christ’s full and free forgiveness—the gospel you truly understand—is just the thing they need.

So don’t be surprised that God is using you to do this. There are those in the pews today who have personal experience with Vietnam. Some watched the news unfold and others were on the ground as a war was underway. Some have a heritage that reaches back to this country. It is totally unexpected for an American church body to have the opportunity to spread the gospel in Vietnam. But with God we have grown to expect the unexpected.

Your Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod is making plans to build a training center in Hanoi, Vietnam. Pastor Ham is helping gather and organize training that will reach hundreds of village churches and over 100,000 people with pure grace. We don’t know exactly how God will use all these efforts, but God does. We who have truly understood God’s grace know that is enough. We ask him to use us to share his gospel. We ask him to bless his gospel as he has promised among us, around the world and in Vietnam. We ask him to help people truly understand his grace.

Like the Apostle Paul who had never met the Colossians, we may never meet Pastor Ham or the other believers in Vietnam. At least—not yet. Because of God’s promises, we know we will be in heaven. Because of the power of God’s gospel we know many who hear this message in Vietnam will be with us there. You have the amazing honor of sharing the precious gospel with others. And you know what will happen. God told you. His grace will grow and bear fruit. Amen.
